DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claims 1-2, 4-10, 12-17, 18-22, and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Naohiro (US 6,317, 414).

Regarding claims 1, 8, 9, 13, 16, and 23, Naohiro discloses a signal switching method and apparatus configured to operate in an ATM network (ATM network). See col. 5, lines 11-15, and also Fig. 1. From Fig. 1, it can be seen that the network contains a plurality of paths, VP1 and VP2, that end in a common destination (plurality of paths to a common destination). The signal 5-1 enters the network at Node 1. The node distributes identical copies down paths VP1 and VP2 (plurality of copies). Node 3 has detection sections 5-6 and 5-5, which receive traffic from VP2 and VP1, respectively (receiving ATM traffic from a traffic source, each one of the paths having a receive circuit). See also col. 6, lines 41-57. The selector 5-7 selects the virtual path input that will continue on to 5-8 (configuring an ATM switch to provide a route to a common destination). See Fig. 1, and col. 6, lines 41-57. The selector chooses the correct virtual path by selecting a signal closer to normality out of the plurality of signals (determining a qualified copy of the traffic). See part (e) of claim 1. By selecting the more normal signal, the other virtual path is essentially ignored or discarded (discarding all copies of the traffic except for the qualified copy such that only the qualified copy is passed through).

Regarding claims 2, 4, 10, 14, 17, and 19, Naohiro discloses that an Alarm Indicating Signal can be inserted into the virtual path to indicate if a failure occurs, and this information can be used by the detecting sections to determine which path is selected (determining comprises receiving management cells on a path indication AIS, LOC, or BER, and receive circuit is operable to receive management traffic on a path indication degradation or loss of signal). See Fig. 1, and col. 6, lines 41-57.

Regarding claims 5, 6, 12, 20, and 21, the AIS is qualifying information that tells the detecting sections and the selector which of VP should be switched through and which should be discarded at the receive circuits. In order for the receive circuits to know which VP should be discarded, the receive circuits must somehow communicate with each other. See Fig. 1, and col. 6, lines 41-57.

Regarding claims 7, 15, and 22, Fig. 1 discloses a ring where the path 5-2 travels in a clockwise direction and path 5-3 travels in a counterclockwise direction around the ring (wherein the paths comprise a first in a first direction around a SONET UPSR and a second path in a second direction around the SONET UPSR).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. Claims 3, 11, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Naohiro in view of Rubino et al. (US 6,424,629). Claims 3, 11, and 18 are dependent on claims 1, 9 and 16, respectively, so the rejections made to those claims also apply here. Naohiro does not expressly disclose using a keep-alive signal to determine a qualified copy of traffic. Rubino et al. discloses detecting periodic keep-alive messages to indicate that the channel is still active. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to add a keep-alive signal into the signal switching that Naohiro discloses. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this because using a keep-alive signal is just another way of detecting the quality of a path and thus determining which signal would be more qualified.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Tada et al. (US 5,532,862), Mitchell (US 6,442,134), Gorshe et al. (US 5,355,362), and DeFoster et al. (US 5,535,035) disclose communication systems that can switch between lines.
